

EMPLOYERS MEET

FIFTEEN HUNDRED IN SESSION IN NEW YORK.

They Are the Backbone of the Citizens' Industrial Association of America, and Their Mission is to Counteract and Neutralize the Work of the Various Labor Unions—Will Fight the Eight-Hour Day and Anti-Injunction Legislation.

New York, Nov. 29.—Fifteen hundred of the largest employers of labor in America filled Carnegie Music hall today at the opening of the second annual convention of the Citizens' Industrial Association of America. What the American Federation of Labor is to the workingman the Citizens' Industrial Association is to the employers. While the former is exerting its powerful influence in favor of the "closed shop," the anti-injunction bill and the eight-hour bill, the latter is combating the same with all its strength.

For these reasons the present con-

FIFTY CENTS

A MONTH

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort.

Babies that are given Scott's Emulsion quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most.

Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

vention, which is to continue two days, will be watched with keenest interest in the labor world. The convention has announced its intention of paying particular attention to the "open shop" question, and, in fact, no secret is made by the employers in the association to sound the death knell of the "closed shop." During the last year or two the open shop idea has spread very rapidly in this country, particularly in the West.

The present movement for the banding together of the employers of the country against the so-called tyranny of the trades unions was started by David M. Parry, an Indianapolis manufacturer, early in 1903. In October of last year a preliminary conference was held in Chicago that resulted in the formal launching of the association some months later. The movement has grown so rapidly that it now embraces employers' associations of all the towns of any size in the country.

GREAT JEWEL SALE

PROPERTY WAS SEIZED
BY CUSTOM HOUSE MEN.

The Owner Declared That They Were Gifts and on That Account Were Not Dutiable—Their Disposition Has Been in the Courts Four Years—The Entire Lot of Jewels Are Valued at Nearly $64,000.

New York, Nov. 29.—Seldom if ever before in this city has a sale of seized goods attracted as much attention as that begun today by United States Marshal Henkel. The sale is that of the jewelry seized by ex-Special Agent Theobald from Mrs. Phyllis E. Dodge on her arrival in this country over four years ago.

Mrs. Dodge brought the jewels over in a small handbag, but failed to declare them. A banker met her at the pier, and just as she was about to hand the satchel to him Agent Theobald, who was also a passenger on the vessel, seized them. Mrs. Dodge tried to regain the jewels, contending that as they had been presented to her they were not dutiable, and for that reason she did not declare them. The case was carried to the United States supreme court, which tribunal decided against Mrs. Dodge.

For the purposes of the sale the jewels have been divided into seven lots, the first consisting of one pearl necklace and a charm studded with rubies and diamonds. The foreign value of the necklace is given as $35,000. Theobald will receive about 30 per cent of the price the jewels bring for making the seizure. As they are valued at $63,927, this may give him about $20,000.
